Schedule of Can Art Save the Planet conference and accompanying events

Can Art Save the Planet is a series of events addressing some of the challenges faced by art and culture in an era of ongoing climate change. The public programme consists of events introducing environment-related issues in a way that will enable the exchange of experiences between Poland and Germany. The programme concentrates on issues pertaining to art, culture and social responsibility. Good international practices are extremely important, because they can set a positive example and ensure the sustainability of our actions.

As part of the project, a series of podcasts and an online publication will be created.

The programme is conducted in cooperation with the Foundation for Polish-German Cooperation as part of the project line "30 Years of the Treaty – 30 Years of the FPGC," carried out by Goethe Institute Krakow and the Municipality of Wrocław.

Lectures: "Through art to the worldview. Can art do?," "What can art do for the climate? A bit about values." and "OP_Talks | The paradoxes we live in in the 21st century." are carried out thanks to the support of Gimna Wrocław (www.wroclaw.pl) and take place as part of the Angelika Markul's exhibition entitled "Formula of time".
